The Impact of Lung Disease on Firefighters & First Responders

The mission of the American Lung Association hits close to home with firefighters because of their increased susceptibility to lung disease.

- Respiratory diseases remain a significant health issue for firefighters and emergency responders
- In the line of duty, firefighters may experience occupational exposure to gases, chemicals, particulate and other substances with potentially damaging short- and long-term effects on the respiratory system
- Firefighters and first responders are at a higher risk to develop chronic issues, including lingering cough, hoarseness, asthma, and allergies in more extreme cases, may be diagnosed with lung or bronchial cancer.

2026 Greater Philadelphia Firefighter Challenge

To create comradery and a friendly competition, we are offering a few ways to Climb with your department while competing for team and individual fire & first responder awards.

2026 Greater Philadelphia Firefighter Challenge

The Firefighter Challenge awards are meant to create friendly competition and comradery amongst our firefighter participants. We try to offer as many participation options as possible. The Lung Association staff reserves the right to change awards categories and rules based on the number of participants in any given category.

Team Awards: To qualify for team awards, you must have a minimum of FOUR participants competing in the same category (i.e. four firefighters participating in full-gear AND on-air to qualify for those awards, etc.). For teams with more than four participants in the same category, only the four fastest times will count towards the teams' average time. The John Narkin Award will be awarded to the top fundraising firefighter.

We will only offer team awards to categories where TWO or more teams exist with a minimum of four participants on each team. If only one team exists within a category, we will not offer team awards for that category. You will still qualify for individual awards if your team does not qualify for team awards in any category.
